

SWEET GIRL GRADUATES
SHOW PATRIOTIC SPIRIT

G. P. S. Seniors Waive All Social Entertainment—Plans for Commencement.

When seniors of the Girl's Preparatory school complete the year's work with graduating exercises at the court-house next Wednesday morning, it will be with a realization of time well spent along both educational and patriotic lines. In recognition of this period of stress, as well as of the recent bereavement at the school in the death of their beloved principal, Miss Grace McCallie, the class has waived all social entertainment. Hereafter the last week of school has usually been marked by a round of festivities in which the seniors were the central figures. All of this has been changed this year. For several weeks past interest has centered in thrift stamps, liberty bonds and Red Cross work, activities continuing to the close of the semester. The seniors made a contribution of $30 to the Red Cross, the amount being saved out of their allowances. This meant, for several, the complete sacrifice of the movies, ice cream and soft drinks. Since the first liberty bond drive, the students have sold over $12,000 worth. In the second drive they sold $18,900. This year the school publication, was given to the Red Cross. It is usually devoted to social entertainment.

Miss Tommy Duffy, in charge of the school, is directing preparations for commencement. The seniors will wear costumes consisting of plain white skirts and blouses. No printed invitations to commencement will be issued this year.

The occasion will be marked by an address from the president of the University of Tennessee. A feature of the program will be a song composed by Miss Roseamonde Ramsey and set to music by her father, Mr. William J. Ramsey.

The class is composed of the Misses Merle Wood, Reba Palmer, Pauline Sprinkle, Roseamonde Ramsey, Margaret Hill, Lucille Jahnke, Mary Hitzfeld and the irregular fourth year membership composed of the Misses Grace Divine, Elizabeth Browne, Annie Carroll, Sarah Betterton, Elizabeth Montgomery, Vivien Bowman, Clara Anderson.

Miss Merle Wood is president and Miss Sarah Betterton secretary and treasurer.

This year's Kaleidoscope board is composed of the following: Miss Pauline Sprinkle, editor-in-chief; Miss Merle Wood, business manager; Miss Reba Palmer, literary editor; Miss Margaret Hill, joke editor; Miss Mary Rogers, art editor; Miss Lucille Jahnke, senior representative.

Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Jackson park. An attractive, patriotic program was given by the children of the various grades, interspersed with songs by the community chorus, led by J. O. Carter, assistant community chorister. Later in the evening a concert was given by the Fifty-first Infantry band. At 6 o'clock a basket supper was enjoyed. Wheatless pies featured in the menu.

Fourfold Program of Ottokar Cadek Announced

The violin program to be given by Ottokar Cadek Monday night at the First Baptist church before the Music club is of interest to the Chattanooga public. The program will present four contrasting divisions which will bring out the many-sided talent of the young virtuoso. Compositions by Tartini, Couperin, Bach and Paganini will compose the first part. A Spanish symphony by Lalo will be played during the second part. The third part will present a variety of classical and high-grade moderns and during the fourth part a composition by Roy Lamont Smith and four by Felix Kreisler will be played. Miss Lillian Cadek will accompany. Almost the entire program will be made up of selections that are new to the public.

The recital is arranged as a courtesan to the officers to the Music club who have been anxious to hear Ottokar Cadek since his return from a period of study with Franz Kneisel in New York.

PARTIES FOR SOLDIERS AT CHURCHES TONIGHT
The ladies of the Second Presbyterian church will serve supper from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Saturday evening at the church, for the soldiers at Camp Forrest. Following the supper the young people will entertain with a social in their honor. Old-fashioned games and music will be enjoyed. Refreshments will be served.

The ladies of the First Methodist church will serve the regular cafeteria supper at the church. A reception from 8 to 10 p.m. will be enjoyed, members of the Philhellenic club being in charge. A cordial invitation is extended to the men of the army post.

Four of the Many Chattanooga Who Are In Uncle Sam's Service at Home and Overseas

Boys "With the Colors" Write to Home Folks—Lieut. Carlin Shackleford Says English Are "Trying to Figure Out" Baseball—Lieut. Creed F. Bates Feels He Adds to Spectacle of Yanks Attempting "Parley Vowing"—Alfred McIsaac Sure He Will Be Home to Eat Christmas Dinner, With the War Safely Over.

Letters from three of the Chattanooga boys who are now in overseas service with the army of Uncle Sam are printed below.

The first is from First Lieut. C. Carlin Shackleford, oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Shackleford, of Walden's ridge, London, England, with the mechanical engineers, signal corps, U. S. A. He went across last January after spending a few months for a special course at Memphis, Tenn., aviation school, where he was ordered on graduation from the second officers' training camp at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. Shackleford earlier attended the Tate school, Shelbyville, Tenn. He was connected with a well-known auto supply firm when war called him to the colors.

England, March 21, 1918.

Dear Dad—I spent four days in London a week ago and while they were rather expensive days I do not regret the money spent, for I saw some great sights. I had a bad spell of weather catch me there and was not able to see all that I had intended seeing, but I will have another chance to go for a day or two in a couple of weeks.

I am beginning to think that I am going to be here for some time to come from the tone of some official correspondence we received a few days ago, but am hoping to get over as soon as possible.

The training of the men is progressing as well as could be expected and I am well pleased with most of them. I think on the whole this branch of service has the best grade of men in it of any branch and that helps a great deal.

I have been playing baseball with the boys out on the field. I was as sore as an old man for a day or two. The Red Cross society in London sent us a full outfit of baseball tools and all the men enjoy it, as well as a lot of officers, especially Americans and Canadians. The Englishmen have a time trying to figure it all out and asked the men lots of questions the first few days that we played. I think they have gotten it in their heads by this time. The German prisoners who are here working on buildings stand and grin while they watch through their thick heads.

Well "Mr. Shack," I will now go to breakfast if you have no objections and get some unsweetened porridge and fishballs, unless the menu has been changed lately. I never pay to miss meal here, for you don't catch up to me for three days. Love to all the family. BILLIE.

From Lieut. Creed Bates.
The second letter is from Lieut. Creed F. Bates, Jr., son of Squire and Mrs. L. W. Bates, of St. Elmo, who is in France with the field artillery. Lieut. Bates was commissioned at the close of the second training camp at Camp Warden McLean, Fort Oglethorpe, and from there went to Camp Gordon, Atlanta, for awhile. He is a graduate of Central High school of Chattanooga, and before entering the army was a member of the faculty of the former school. One of his recent letters follows:

"Somewhere in France, May 2, 1918.
"Dear Family—Today is another beautiful day. Makes me want to go fishing, or better, take a long hike on the ridge.

"Everybody who comes to our officers' mess here says it is the best in France. It is by far the best I've seen so far in the army and only costs a few cents per day, and the United States gives you $7 for a dollar. For example, this morning we had for breakfast, oatmeal, fried eggs, Irish potatoes, lightbread, fresh doughnuts, grape jam, coffee, canned milk and plenty of sugar. For dinner the menu was of the same style. Had pumpkin pie for dessert.

"I was talking recently to some boys who had been in an artillery school over here. They had had French mess, which cost them 200 pounds a month, and in one organization 285 pounds, and they said it was miserable. Bread, chocolate and apple sauce for breakfast, no sugar, and it took a year to eat a meal, everything being so long strung out.

"After talking 'at' French for an hour or two, my tongue actually feels peculiar. The French spoken in this section is supposed to be excellent; many people think it is superior to the Parisian speech. It is a picnic to see some of the Yanks 'parley-vouing' and I presume I add to the spectacle myself. The French take it good naturedly, though, and seem pleased that we are trying to learn their language. Many of them are attempting some English. Love, CREED.

From Alfred McIsaac.
The third letter is from Alfred McIsaac, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter McIsaac, of 315 Kirby avenue, Highland Park. He also is in France, having gone over with the Sewanee ambulance unit from the University of the South. He is one of five brothers, all now wearing the American uniform. But not just the same style of uniform, for the quietest chose widely different lines of service. Lieut. David Bruce McIsaac is in training at the Artillery School of Fire, Fort Bliss, Okla. Two boys are jolly tars—James McIsaac and William John McIsaac. Both shipped from Jacksonville, Fla., on the same boat. Supply Sergeant Peter McIsaac, of the 11th infantry, is now en route to Europe, perhaps at this moment on the high seas. No mother's heart in Chattanooga has a greater right to be proud than Mrs. McIsaac, as far as is known, no other home in the Chattanooga vicinity has as many sons in the service. Excerpts from letters follow:

"S. S. U. 558, Convois Autos, Expeditionary Force, Par. B. C. M. Paris, France.
"Dear Mother—I can't tell you all I would like to in regard to our trip and where we are at the present, but I can tell you we are close to a lively celebration.

"I am quite certain that I will eat dinner at home next Christmas, as the war will end between now and that time. Of course, one doesn't know for certain, but I will be sadly disappointed if it isn't finished by Christmas. The Germans are about finished, and I believe the allies know it.

"The American soldiers are cordially received in Paris, and the city is still gay. Were it not for the many uniforms one wouldn't realize it was the capital of a warring nation.

"I am at last back with the section and we are living like gypsies. However, we are comfortable at the present and are getting plenty of good, wholesome food.

"I have about decided to visit Scotland on my next leave, provided I can arrange things. I would like to tell you of some of our experiences, but can't on account of the censor. They would be interesting to you in one sense and frightening in another, so I don't know whether it would be best for you to know of them or not."

In another letter, written during the German offensive, he wrote: "We are located on a beautiful farm, the first of its kind I have seen in France. We are sleeping in the loft of one of the various barns, and it isn't bad at all; to be frank, it is the best place we have been in since landing in France. I can't tell you what we are doing on the farm, as it might be of value to the enemy.

"The only thing we think and talk about is the war. We discuss the conditions of last year and those of the present time. Most of us have arrived at a final conclusion, and it is thus, that the war will end this year sometime. Many of the boys are betting on the month it will end, and by the way, I just won a bet the 15th of this month. One of the boys bet me some time ago that one of the central powers would sign a separate peace by the above-mentioned date. I hope it all will end before any more Americans get over here. Even if the boys don't get to come over in great numbers, there will be a good impression left behind, as the ones over here have shown up perfectly."

In another letter written he says: "We are in a small village, and we are the first Americans these villagers have seen. You can't imagine how glad they were to see us. Every time we pass any of them they stop and stare at us as if they were crazy, but it is not the case. Instead they are interested in us, and they believe the Americans will save France from defeat. Your loving son, "ALFRED."

"Knave of Hearts," Mary Ella Bank in a "Ballet de Fleurs" Arwin Preston as "Summer," Mary Donohue as "Bacchante," Frances Bowles in "Dance of the Fairies," Louise Metten as "Cardinal Bird." There will be choruses of barefoot and toe dancers, soldiers and sailors, bluebirds and butterflies, jewels and bubbles, sleigh bells and snowballs, calypso dancers and Irish chorus. "Charmade's" "Scarf Dance" will be interpreted by a group of girls led by Winifred Stanfield and Waukena DeBardelaben.

The musical numbers are unusually good, this being the first time that such compositions as "Liebersfreud," by Kreisler, and "Oriental," by Cesarin have been used locally as themes for dancing numbers.
